The Aztec Wind God

First, WRITE DOWN as many features of the Wind God’s disguise as you can find...

________________      ________________
________________      ________________
________________      ________________
________________      ________________
________________      ________________
________________      ________________

Second, on our website it shows you how the Aztecs imagined their Wind God as a dancing pregnant monkey, whirling round and round to represent a tornado or ‘twister’. Describe below how YOU would depict a fierce wind in the form of a sculpture (or some other art)...

________________________________________________________________________
________________________________________________________________________
________________________________________________________________________
________________________________________________________________________
________________________________________________________________________
________________________________________________________________________

Now, try and draw your idea of a fierce wind god on a new sheet of paper...!